STORING A PWC ON A LIFT IS EASIER, FASTER AND SAFER

With an average price tag north of $11,000, personal watercraft (PWC) are investments that deserve to be maintained. The best way to keep them in showroom-like condition is to store them on a lift. Not only is it faster, safer and more convenient than using a trailer or dolly, it's far gentler on valuable watercraft. Golden Boat Lifts manufactures a wide range of easy-to-operate PWC lifts for almost any site, even accommodating multiple boats on a single unit. Its two most popular models are its Four-Post and Elevator styles.

Golden Boat Lifts Four-Post lifts utilize existing or installed piles. They can be manufactured for single or multiple PWC. Because they're built for a specific site, they adapt to a wide range of post heights and spacing. Heavy duty adjustable guide post bumpers, and carpeted wood or optional aluminum bunks make getting onto the lift a breeze.

When on a seawall, or where piles can't be used or are limited in number, Golden Boat Lifts Elevator Lifts are the perfect solution. They lift from one side and are widely adaptable to different applications, and can be built to store one or more PWC.

Both types of lifts rely on Golden Sea-Drives®. More than ample power comes from its double reduction worm gears. It has no belts to slip or chains to break. It's backed with a 10-year warranty, yet in over 18,000 manufactured, not one has ever failed.

All Golden Boat Lifts are fully welded for maximum strength and to resist galvanic corrosion. They're built using 6061 T6 marine-grade aluminum for use in fresh or salt water, and cable and hardware are all stainless steel. CE approved, they're manufactured in an ISO certified facility and come with a 15-year warranty on structural parts.

For over 30 years, Golden has led the industry in bringing innovative boat lifts to market. It manufactures models to fit a wide range of monohulls, catamarans, sailboats and large motor yachts up to 250,000 lbs.
